NOTES

Context gathered from conversations with the client — reference before finalizing this proposal.

- The Board is evaluating a change in management from The Andrews Organization; recent DOB compliance and civil-penalty exposure at the building were a central topic of the introductory call.
- 382 Lafayette Street is a nine-unit, individually owned condominium (8 residential units over 1 ground-floor commercial unit) in the NoHo Historic District — a boutique, high-touch building rather than a large roll of shareholders.
- Board members participating in discussions: Samantha Gasmer (Unit 4), Kelly, Philip, and Thomas.

PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

382 Lafayette Street is a nine-story, nine-unit condominium in the NoHo Historic District, built in 1895–96 as a warehouse for original owner Edward Judson and later converted into eight individually owned residential loft units over one ground-floor commercial unit. The building is a cast-iron and masonry structure typical of NoHo's landmarked loft stock, served by a passenger elevator, and has recently completed an elevator modernization (permit issued 2025) and a roughly $235,000 facade and roof restoration spanning floors 2 through 9. The Condominium is currently managed by The Andrews Organization (Stuart Smolar).

NEXT STEPS

1. Discuss This Proposal Further — schedule a call or meeting to walk through scope, fee, and answer any questions.
2. Finalize Term & Fee — confirm the management term and fee structure that works best for the Board/ownership.
3. Execute Property Management Agreement — once terms are identified, Camelot will issue the formal Agreement for signature.
4. Begin Transition — our transition team takes over from there, outlined below.

Summary of Transitional Procedures

Camelot understands that a change in management can feel disruptive if it isn't handled carefully. Our transition team works closely with the outgoing management company, ownership, and building staff to make the handoff as seamless as possible — most transitions take 45–60 days. Upon being retained, we contact the outgoing manager directly, request all building files and financial records, and set target dates for payroll, billing, and any time-sensitive operational items so nothing falls through the cracks.

Budget, Facility & Staff Review

In parallel with the transition, we conduct a full review of the building's finances, staff, and current vendor relationships against comparable properties in our portfolio. We meet with building staff to understand what's working and what isn't, and we deliver a written report to the Board within the first 30 days, along with recommendations for cost savings or operational improvements.

Meet & Greet with Owners/Board

Within the first 30–60 days, we like to introduce the Camelot team to residents and the Board, in person or over Zoom. This gives owners a chance to put a face to the team managing their building, raise any concerns directly, and update their contact information on file.

Thank you again for your consideration.

Addendum A — Compliance & Civil Penalty Summary

A review of New York City Department of Buildings (DOB/BIS) records as of September 14, 2026 (BIN #1008508) identifies the following open compliance exposure at 382 Lafayette Street. Resolution of each item is built into the Phase I transition plan described in the accompanying Transition & File Request Guide.

Compliance Type	Total Violations	Civil Penalties Due
Elevators	4 (3 active, 1 dismissed)	$9,000.00
Boiler	19 (11 active, 8 dismissed)	$12,000.00
Facades	1 (1 active)	$750.00
Total	24 (16 active, 8 dismissed)	$21,750.00

Detail by Category:

- Elevators (Device 1P2920) — three active violations for failure to file Category 1 test affirmations of correction, covering cycle years 2021, 2023, and 2024, each carrying a $3,000 penalty ($9,000 total). One 2022-cycle violation was waived/dismissed.
- Boiler — 19 total violations for failure to file external Low Pressure inspection affirmations of correction, concentrated in the 2018 cycle (8 violations) with additional open items from 2020, 2021, and 2024; $12,000 in civil penalties remain due across the active violations, with 8 earlier 2017-cycle violations already paid or dismissed.
- Facades — one active FISP (Facade Inspection & Safety Program) violation, Cycle 8C, for failure to file the technical report by its 2/21/2019 deadline; $750 penalty due.

Camelot will file all outstanding Cat1 elevator test affirmations, retain a licensed boiler inspector to clear the outstanding Low Pressure inspection filings, and engage a FISP-qualified engineer to close the facade filing — each within the first 60 days of the transition — and will bring a resolution plan and updated penalty schedule to the Board before authorizing any payment.
